YOU'RE INVITED

The Australian and New Zealand Society of Occupational Medicine (ANZSOM) invites you to consider being part of the Annual Scientific Meeting of the Society to be held in March 2022.

Following on from a highly successful Virtual Event in November 2020, the 2022 ASM will be a cutting-edge combination of virtual and in-person event techniques.

The world and work are changing, and this year's theme looks to explore the key issues that have emerged for occupational medicine – Culture, COVID and Climate, as well as providing opportunities for knowledge and skill development across a range of topics relevant to our daily practice.

The diverse program will feature workshops, site visits and expert presenters, with much of the content streamed to suit the new normal in conference delivery. Together with our social events, the meeting will provide outstanding opportunities to interact with our delegates. Our partnership with the Australasian Faculty of Occupational & Environmental Medicine (AFOEM) will also raise the profile of this event among occupational physicians.

Please explore what the prospectus has to offer or contact us to discuss your ideas for involvement. We hope to see you in Brisbane!

Yours sincerely,

Dr Edward Foley and Dr Vern Madden
