ANZSOM Webinar Series SPONSORSHIP PROSPECTUS 2025

GOOD WORK, SAFE WORKPLACES, HEALTHY WORKERS

PARTNER WITH US TO DELIVER QUALITY EDUCATION IN OCCUPATIONAL MEDICINE

The Australian and New Zealand Society of Occupational Medicine (ANZSOM) is a society where the highest value is placed on GOOD WORK, SAFE WORKPLACES, and HEALTHY WORKERS.

With over 450 members across Australia and New Zealand we are driven to connect our members with occupational medicine and health experts, to build their knowledge and skills and make connections to support their practice.

By necessity, our program of webinars took off in 2020, fulfilling a need for regular education and engagement that we could no longer deliver face-to-face. The result is a popular ongoing series of monthly webinars, featuring high profile speakers and enabling participation from members and non-members across the country, as well as internationally.

We are now pleased to offer partnership in this educational program, with sponsorship of individual webinars or a selection of your choice. Read on to find out more and please contact us to discuss your ideas.

The 2025 webinar schedule has been created to showcase a wide variety of topics, catering to the diversity of our membership.

#itswhatyouknow WEBINAR SERIES

ANZSOM offers a regular series of webinars which are run regularly throughout the year. These are targeted to a broad audience and address a diverse range of occupational medicine topics.

Nurses Focus webinars (3 per year)

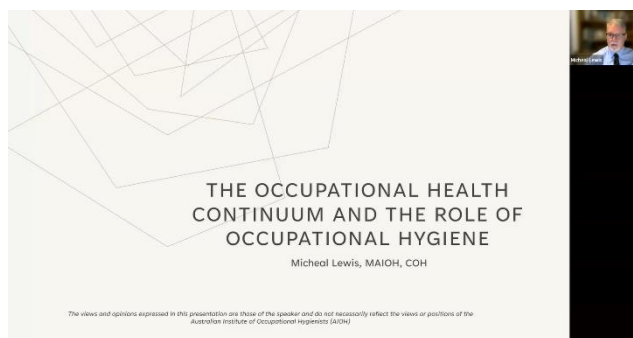

This series of webinars was introduced in 2022, and is designed specifically for occupational health nurses and aligns with the new OHN Competency Standards.

Occupational Medicine 101 series (at least 3 per year)

This series is designed to connect attendees with the fundamental concepts of Occupational and Environmental Medicine and enable direct engagement with some of the leading experts in our field. While ideally suited to trainees, professionals of all levels find this a beneficial format for exploring and sharing the essentials of our specialty.
